

THE STORY

There were five Italian opera singers whose last names were Ziti, Tortellini, Rigatoni, Linguine and Fettuccine who had, of course, five different first names. Their first names were Mike, Hank, Jack, Mary and Jane. Each of these opera stars had a different favorite activity. They enjoyed swimming, soccer, gardening, reading and cooking. Based on the clues, match the opera singers with their first names and their favorite activities.

THE CLUES

1. Jack thought that Hank's gardening and Mary's swimming were too much like work and he never did either of those two activities.
2. Ziti, whose first name was not either Hank or Mary, thought Jane's love of cooking was one reason why she was so well liked.
3. Rigatoni, whose first name was not either Hank or Mary, tried never to stand next to Jane because she always smelled like good food and it made him hungry.
4. Fettuccine did not either garden or cook, and Jane's last name was not Linguine.
5. Rigatoni did not play soccer, and Mike did not enjoy reading.

THE STORY

Five bears named Bruno, Bart, Berniece, Bonnie and Bill were sitting around the forest one day having a nice chat. One of the bears suggested that they all tell something that they were afraid of that they had never revealed before. The bears agreed, and admitted to being afraid of baldness, hibernating with a skunk, beagles, enraged woodchucks and ballet dancers. Changing the subject, they talked about their favorite activities which were bike riding, juggling, jumping rope, roller skating and astronomy. Based on the clues, match the bears with their secret fears and their favorite activities.

THE CLUES

1. The bear that was afraid of baldness and becoming a bare bear loved to ride a bike.
2. The bear that loved astronomy was deathly afraid of hibernating with a skunk because of a severe sinus condition.
3. Bruno, Bart and Bonnie were not afraid of either baldness or hibernating with a skunk.
4. Berniece did not care for astronomy, and neither Bart nor Bonnie enjoyed juggling.
5. The bear that was afraid of angry woodchucks liked to roller skate.
6. Bonnie did not like to jump rope, and it was the rope-jumping bear that was afraid of beagles.
