

And Don't Call Me Squirrely

THE STORY

Five squirrels named Sam, Sal, Shawn, Steve and Seth married five different animals named Tillie, Tasha, Toni, Terri and Toula who were a turtle, a rat, a mouse, a skunk and a rabbit. Scientists were amazed when the five couples all had children and proclaimed the discovery of five new species of animals. These new species were called squirtles, squats, squouses, squunks and squibits. Based on the clues, match the squirrels with the names of their brides, the kinds of animals they were, and the scientific names of their children.

THE CLUES

1. Oddly enough, none of the scientific names were the least bit logical and none of them sounded right to anybody.
2. Sam and Sal were happy with the animals they married, but were sure the squirrels that married the turtle, the mouse and the rabbit made a mistake.
3. Tillie and Toni were either a rat or a skunk.
4. Shawn did not marry Terri or Toula, Steve did not marry Toula the turtle or a rabbit.
5. Sam did not marry Tillie the rat.
6. The scientific name for the children of Sam, Sal and Shawn was not squirtles.
7. Shawn and Seth's children were not squats.
8. Sal's children were not squibits or squouses.

THE STORY

Fred, Fran, Ferdy, Ferris and Farrah signed up for an adventure vacation. On the trip, each was attacked by a different animal. They were attacked by a lion, a giraffe, a warthog, a rhino and a leopard. Luckily, they all escaped serious injury, but each was injured slightly. Their injuries were a cut, a scrape, a sprain, a bruise and a scratch. When they were attacked, they all lost something as they ran away in a panic. They lost a camera, a purse, a watch, sunglasses and a hat. Based on the clues, match the names with the animals that attacked them, their injuries and their lost items.

THE CLUES

- Both Fred and Fran helped the person who was scraped by a warthog look for that person's watch.
- The person bruised by a leopard lost a purse, and the person scratched by a rhino lost a camera.
- Fran suffered a cut, and Fred was not bruised or scratched.
- Farrah was not scraped or bruised, and Fran did not lose her hat.
- Ferdy was not attacked by a leopard, and Fred was not attacked by a lion.
